Orion ready for flight!

Orion C200 sensor

Southern Mapping Company recently became the proud owners of Optech Incorporated's new Airborne Laser Terrain Mapper (ALTM) Orion C200 sensor. SMC is the only commercial owner of this device – a first of its kind on the African continent.

The Orion fires 200,000 laser pulses per second, ensuring that highly accurate and dense topographic data can be rapidly acquired. Weighing just 27 kilograms, this device is easily installed in most aircrafts used for aerial mapping. Even in the most demanding operating environments, the Orion's modular design enables maximum reliability.

The Orion launch will be taking place at Monte Casino on 15 September 2009.

If you are interested in attending the launch, please contact Melanie Landman at melanie@southernmapping.com

TUV Rating

SMC was recently audited by TUV Rheinland South Africa and was awarded an ISO 9001: 2008 quality rating.

The rating is a symbol of excellence and ensures that the most stringent quality and safety requirements have been fulfilled. This accreditation is a mark of distinction that SMC is very pleased with.
